Scotch Regions and Producers

Hello! Here is a list of the Whisky regions of Scotland, with famous producers. In some cases, the specific bottlings of various producers have been included for their unique names, which buck the industry trend of age-specific titles.

The regions are listed from a rough north-to-south order. The producers and any specific bottlings are listed in a subjective most-to-least-available order. In other words, the regions start with Highland in the north, ending with Lowland in the south. The Highland producers start with the giant Glenmorangie and their various bottlings, and end with the lesser-known Teaninich. Islands are listed in a similar order, based on typical availability. This list is not exhaustive, and has sought to highlight the essential Scotch producers, with a few niche examples included. These lesser-known brands are noted in italics.

Independent Bottlers, Multi-Region Single Malt, Blended Scotch, Blended Malt, Single Grain and Scottish Gin have been included as a bonus, again ordered by typical presence in the market. Enjoy! Feel free to send feedback via email here.

The last page features a handy map that features many of the distilleries listed here. This list is accompanied by a pronunciation guide, found at www.mediumplus.com
